Fall Evergreen Care

Evergreens going into their first winter after transplant may require some extra care. Be sure to water the trees thoroughly at the time of planting and about every other week (depending on temperature) until frost sets in.

To prevent winterkill caused by the low humidity and drying winds we recommend spraying with an anti-desiccant spray or wrapping with burlap. This should be done in late November to early December.

Wrapping: Bale the tree with twine from the bottom up to hold branches together for easier wrapping. Then begin wrapping the burlap from the bottom generously overlapping so that the wind will not separate the burlap layers. Remove burlap in mid to late March or when snow is melted.

As with any newly planted tree, spread mulch heavily around the base to hold in moisture and reduce weeds in growing season. Make sure the mulch is well away from the trunk to allow for adequate airflow.
